

28 February 2012, at the National Library of Vietnam, Mr. Jorge Rondon Uzcategui - Ambassador of the Republic of Venezuela in Vietnam made a solemn delivery of 200 copies of the book "Simon Bolivar- liberation of nations, homeland creator" libraries Vietnamese.

The book "Simon Bolivar- liberation of nations, homeland creator" which was translated into Vietnamese and published in Vietnam tells the story of the life of the hero who liberated peoples, created several nations - Simon Bolivar. This book is divided into three parts: Simon - a young man; Simon - a man; Simon - the liberator, recounted the life, battles, ideas and views of the leader of a country.

In his speech at the ceremony, the Ambassador believes that the translation and publication of this book in Vietnam was an important step in the process of improving mutual understanding and strengthening of relations between two peoples geographically distant yet having the same dream of freedom. He also wants the Vietnamese, thanks to this book which help to understand the country better and the Venezuelan people and their struggle for independence of the nation in the historical context of the first half of the 19th century and this book gets to the readers of Vietnamese all ages as soon as possible.

Ms. Phan Thi Kim Dung received the book delivered by HE Ambassador Jorge Rondon Uzcategui

On behalf of Vietnamese libraries, Ms. Phan Thi Kim Dung, Director of the National Library of Vietnam has received the book and put it into service for all readers of National Library of Vietnam and other recipients of this gift.

The leaders of the National Library of Vietnam with Ambassador Jorge Rondon Uzcategui

---

Text and photos: Minh Chau