In the field of Information – Library, standardization is the process to establish and apply regulations for repeated tasks of the library-information activities in order to ensure the stability and efficiency of these activities. Standardization has become a trend and a requirement for library activities, especially in the current context of globalization, integration to the world community and application of Information Technology.

The aim of standardization of the Library - Information activities is to reach an unification in description and catalogue of the library materials as well as creation of user service methods and library-information products towards low cost, high efficiency and time saving, etc. while benefits of the users and librarians are still ensured.

This TCVN includes 4 parts: Part 1 – General Terminologies of the Library activities. The later parts will be terminologies of each specific field.

10 papers and contributions of the library – information professionals and experts have been presented at the Symposium. These contributions to the draft TCVN focused on the following issues:

- Highlight the necessity of standardization in library activities.
- Current status of development and application of national standards in library activities in Viet Nam
- Development direction for standardization of the Vietnamese library activities
- Feedbacks and discussions for terminologies and definitions addressed in the Draft TCVN “Library activities – Terminologies and Definitions. Part 1. Basic terminologies”

At the conclusion of the Symposium, an unanimous opinion with the structure of the draft TCVN has been reached. The Symposium also agreed that basic terminologies related to library activities have been covered quite adequately in the draft TCVN while there are still some terminologies need to be edited, added as well as further considered for the TCVN and some terminologies should be edited correctly in Vietnamese, English and Russian, etc.
